URBAN AGE

Urban Age's principal aim is to shape the thinking and practice of urban leaders and sustainable urban development. Initiated by the Cities Programme at the London School of Economics and Political Science and Deutsche Bank's Alfred Herrhausen Society, Urban Age is structured around international and multidisciplinary events and research supporting the creation of a new urban agenda for global cities.

ORGANISED BY

Cities Programme, London School of Economics And Political Science

The Cities Programme at the London School of Economics and Political Science is an international, interdisciplinary centre dedicated to the understanding of contemporary urban society. Its central objective is to relate the physical structure to the social structure of cities through teaching, research and public activities. Drawing on the expertise of design professionals, academics, city leaders and policy makers, the Cities programme oversees the Urban Age project at the LSE in addition to providing consultancy services for private and public sector clients.

Alfred Herrhausen Society, The International Forum Of Deutsche Bank

The non-profit Alfred Herrhausen Society is the international forum of Deutsche Bank. Its work focuses on new forms of governance as a response to the challenges of the 21st century. The Alfred Herrhausen Society seeks traces of the future in the present, and conceptualises relevant themes for analysis and debate. It works with international partners across a range of fields, including policy, academia and business, to organise forums for discussion worldwide. It forges international networks and builds temporary institutions to help to find better solutions to global challenges. It targets future decision-makers, but also attempts to make its work accessible to a wide public audience. The society is dedicated to the work of Alfred Herrhausen, former spokesman of the Deutsche Bank board of directors, who advocated the idea of corporate social responsibility in an exemplary manner until his assassination by terrorists in 1989. The Alfred Herrhausen Society is an expression of Deutsche Bank's worldwide commitment to civil society.

URBAN AGE ISTANBUL PARTNERS

Istanbul Metropolitan Municipality

Today, the estimated population for Istanbul is approximately 12.7 million and can reach up to 15 million throughout the day. Istanbul, the economic powerhouse of Turkey, generates more than 23% of the national income and 43% of total tax revenues and is a major port and a prominent transit gateway on the international trade routes connecting Europe, Asia and Africa. In recent years, Istanbul Metropolitan Municipality has developed many projects promoting sustainable development in areas of urban transformation, social services for deprived citizens, and mass transportation, specifically railway systems and other innovative systems i.e. BRT.

Arkitera Architecture Center

Founded in 2000, Arkitera Architecture Center is an independent Istanbul based architecture and urbanism center. Its mission is to sustain a better architectural practice, enhance the architectural culture and raise the quality of the built environment in Turkey. In order to achieve this mission, Arkitera develops and publishes several online and print magazines which are followed by the majority of professionals in related fields. Arkitera has also initiated the first and largest archive of contemporary architecture in Turkey, Arkiv, which is available online. Financed through sponsorship and advertisement revenues from the construction and property development industries, the center is able to maintain its independent status. Since its establishment, the Arkitera Architecture Center has become a central communication platform for debates, discussions and dialogues for architecture and urbanism issues thanks to hundreds of conferences, panels and exhibitions organized.

Sabancı University

Sabancı University is a new university that has brought fresh perspectives into the Turkish academic scene. It is known as one of Turkey's most innovative and research-oriented universities and takes part in the creation of a global research and an educational information network. In particular, the undergraduate programs differ significantly in their design and approach from other universities in Turkey and abroad. Undergraduates declare majors in their field of interest after the experience of a two-year, interdisciplinary core curriculum. This mechanism ensures a more conscious, long-term professional commitment. Sabancı University celebrates its 10th year in academic world with more than 3500 students and 3200 alumni in 2009-2010.

Bilgi University

Istanbul Bilgi University was founded in 1996 as a private, non-profit institution and functions under the aegis of the Turkish Higher Education Council. With 10,000 students and a faculty of 700, Bilgi offers undergraduate and graduate programs in the social sciences, economics, business, communications, the arts and law. As a city university, Bilgi has 3 campuses located in central city neighbourhoods, offering easy access to the social and cultural activities in Istanbul. Students are encouraged to participate in university governance and in student clubs and engage in voluntary work. Numerous community development programs and courses bring students and faculty into direct contact with local communities. Innovative academic programs and their curricula allow students to take many elective courses and pursue their intellectual interests alongside their major fields of study. These principles are summarized in Bilgi's motto "Learning for Life".
